The period under review has been even more than ordinarily quiet, and se will be seen from the list attached the bulk of the chartering business done during the fortnight is made up by coal charters in various

Outside of enquiries for tonnage from Japan the market closes extremely dull and rates are low and unsatisfactory.

Concerning Saigon to Hongkong, the few liners still on the regular run are accepting small percels rice at 8 cents, the greater part of the cargo consisting of rice meal. Exports of white rice, cargo rice and paddy during this season amount to total 408, 760 tons as compared with 509, 502 tone same period of last year.

Saigon/Philippines: - Several fresh fix tures have been done at the other end. Inquiries put on our market have so far not been tempting enough for owners to entertain further business.

Java/Outwards:—The local sugar market has considerably improved during the last week, but there is no room for "outside." We notice several Japanese vessels having cleared from here as well as from the Philippines to load sugar for Japan.

expected before November/December.

Newchwang :-- Only one charter is on record at the reduced rate of 23 cents per picul for usual part-cargo. High prices of boars, combined with a bad market locally have prevented charterers from going in for further business.

Coal Freights :- There is a good demand. for tourage and supply remains limited. Fixtures Reported : - Wakamatzu/

DELUSIONS OF DRESS.

The call of summer is a call for new clothes and with the sheep-like instinct of the driven man I go into the shop and order a new suit and succumb to the tailor's auggestion that two pairs of trousurs are necessary in one suit of clothes; go furthe and buy several new ties on my way home; a few shirts of a certain gainty of hue and return to add up the expense and think of the mass of material animal vegetable mineral in which this vile body shrinks from the view of the public. The vests, the shirts, the coats, waistcoats and trousers, the buttons, the study, the ties and collars, the hats, the socks, the boots until when I look at you and you'llook at me there is only a peop of Me to You from the eyes to the collar.

And then I came home, wondering why clothes were necessary, to read in Ford Madox Huelfer's "Ancient Lights"; account of the glorious man who tried discard clothes in London. He was a man of good education, but didn't like clothes. He went to prison many times for collecting a crowd in Hydo Park around the man who didn't want clothes. At last he mounted an omnibus clad in an overcoatand nothing else. He threw the coat everboard, and sat firmly as he was . The omnibus drew into a stable yard and the passenger was taken on a stretcher to the feathers upon the fowl and the wool upon police court-and the magistrate, tired of sentencing him, asked him to dinner. What he wore at dinner I do not know. But there was a compromise. If he would wear running drawers and jersey ..... WHY WEAR CLOTHES?

And the British Museum knew for many years the grey-haired literary man who were the minimum of clothes as a compromise. Running drawers, a jersey, and sandals. Just the compromise of a man to fashion. And there came to me the memory of the wearing of rowing shorts in cold weather during the training for the boat races at Oxford, when the eight was swamped in a blizzard, and no one was the worse by a cold.

Why, indeed, should we want clothes at all, except as the compromise with the civilised world is living on what the other magistrate? Why should we not return to the cheap life of the unclad Patagonian, who on a cold night purspires at the sight the despair of half the world! Until the of a civilised fire? Why should we not, as the lower animals; grow our own clothes on our own small-holdings, producing the fur, feathers and hair, the skin insensibility to protect us? We do it in parts. Take just the ends of the ordinary human being of to-day, omitting for a moment all between the head and tail of the human unimal. The head to begin with. You still talk of a cold in the head. But the cold is never there. A hatless brigade has come into the streets and found that the exposure is defence.

There was a time when our ancestors woru nightcaps to guard the head against the night chill. A nightenp now would be bought as a curiosity by an American mil lionaire. When you go to hed on a cold night you pile the bed clothes upon the body, snuggle them round the back; and THE ORDINARY. HALF-YEARLY leave your head uncovered. The head is will be held at the Company's Hotel, on net cold. Nor is the face cold. Because SATURDAY, the 12th August, 1911, at some necessity has compelled us all to save 12.30 P.M., for the purpose of receiving a our faces, train them to the endurance of Statement of Accounts of the Company to the 30th June, 1911, with the Report of all changes of temperature, and we do not the Directors, and to discuss any matter clothe our faces even in bed. We snore

And then comes the neck and throat. You may remember the account of the neck wraps served out to our sailors in the Black See during the Crimean War. They all had sore throats. Then a genius stopped 989 the supply. And nowadays a sailor sets the fashion of low-necked dressing.

And so skipping the intermediate points of the body, take the question of feet That is to say, feet in terms of boots. You are taught that the foot is the vulnerable end of the body. When men start on walks to Brighton they think of their boots, their socks, their soap. We are warned against getting our feet wet lest we should get a cold in the head. But the people who never wear boots can walk without blisters or corns or colds. I have seen delicate women going in for a cure, and walking barefoot through wet grass on dewy morning. You may pity the children of Dundee who paddle about all day without shoes. Give them shoes and you would give them a cold.

SUPERFLUOUS BOOTS. I have a memory of a football field where as a schoolboy I was playing. A casual sailor wanted to take part in the game. He was admitted. But stumbled, fell, was discontented-until howsat down and tool off his boots. In bare feet and toes he ran and kicked, and explained afterwards that

RUINING AN INDUSTRY.

Obviously, if we all decided to depend on our personal cuticles, we should ruin the whole clothing industry. You have but to think of the fields, the ships, the factories, the tradesmen who live directly or indiredly on hats and boots and all the things that come between. But political economy is full of surprises. Half the half wears. Think of the sudden moment when the world refused to wear even cotton.

The momentary despair of Manchester-reflection came-that all the purveyors of the clothes were working hard to supply slothes to other people in order to get more clothes for themselves, and that those.

Why not cancel out ? "I don't want any more clothes," says the customer. The whole industry from the cotton-field to the cotton mill, from the sheep-run to the tailor's shop, from the cattle muche to the tannery and the boot emperium, replies.

OUTPOSTS OF EMPIRE

Mr. Lewis Harcourt's Tribute to the Race,

Mr Lowis Harcourt, M.P., (Colonial Secretary), presided at the twelith appual dinner of the Corona Club, which took place at the Hotel Cecil on June 29, when a large company of gentlemen associated at one time or another with the Crown Colonies met together.

Proposing the toast of the evening, the Chairman observed that in almost every year of its existence the club made of its annual gathering an increasing auccess 787 This year's dinner was no exception to the rule, for he understood that there were 345 gentlemen present, against 270 twolve, months ago. Their dinner came at a very appropriate moment ROOM in Villa close to sea in Kow-It followed immediately, not the Coronation, which displayed the emblem from which the club :derived its electric light and bells. Terms, $80 per name, but it followed closely upon the Imperial Conference, where he had had the h mour to sit with the trusted and elected representatives of those great Dominions which had proved and continued to justify the capacity of the Anglo-Saxon race for full, and responsible, autonomy. It was true that the lime-light had been directed almost exclusively upon the salf-governing dominions; but it was not exclusively or mainly in the lime-light that the great work of Imperial administration was successfully performed. From the rigours of the snows to the terrors of the sun stretched those disjointed and detached out-posts of Empire, where brave mon-and women too were spending their health, sometimes, alas, shortening their lives in the semi-silence of remote solitudes, toiling for the advance, the profit, the happiness of alien races, whom they controlled with so kindly and fatherly a rule. Auxistysometimes a meed of discouragementmust inevitably be their lot; the triumphs of successful administration sometimes seemed less bright to them than the shadow of a disappointed scheme which had "gang agley." But the sum total of their successos constituted an ever-growing debt owed to them by the teeming millions o > least they could be spared, and that was the pain of a wholly unfounded suspicion that their work was under-valued or their efforts or even their existence forgotten. It was amusing and consoling now to remember that, in years happily long past, the Colonia Office used to be the sport of every detractor; huffeted first by those who: said it did too much and next by those who thought it did too little. To-day the selfgoverning communities made no complaint of interference, and the Crown Colonies had no grievance on the score of neglect. Among these supporting the chairman were Major Sir H. Goold-Adams, Lord Lucas, Sir Cecil Clementi Smith, General Sir R. Biddulph, Sir Sydney Olivier, Sir J. Anderson, Sir J. W. Bonsor, Sir H. Al Blake, Sir M. F. Ommanney, Lieut-Colonel Sir M. THE P. AND O. MURDER. Prisoner Suddenly Shows He Knows English.

There was a curious episode on July 14 at Box Street during the resumed hearing of the charge against Francisco Godhino, aliar Reuben Almeida, an Indian, of murdering Alico Emily Browster, stawardess on the P. and O. liner China, when the vessel was between Colombo and Aden.

Hitherto the prisoner has steadfastly professed not to understand English, even though witnesses said he undertood it on the liner. He even said he could not re cognise his own name when written in English, and therefore could not possibly have written the anonymous letters which Miss Brawster received during the voyage. On Thursday, too, he said he did not understand the Indian interpreter, his language being the Gomese dialect, and therefore a Goanese interpreter was a obtained yesterday.

While a watchman named Wm. Potter, however, was giving evidence that at about 3 o'clock on the morning of the murder he saw the prisoner at the water looker on the main deck, and asked him what he was doing there at that hour in the morning, prisoner suddenly exclaimed in English, "He did not say this time in the morning.

It was night." The witness said the prisoner was carrying a water-can, and he advised him to have some iced water. He said he did not like iced water. Directly afterwards the prisoner again interrupted in English, exclaiming, "It is all lies." He got very excited, and tried to pass the gaoler at the oud of the dock. Finding this impossible he throw himself down on the seat at the other end of the dock, muttering something which the interpreter said meant that he did not wish to Mr Hernard Blythman, purser of the China, said that prisoner asserted he could poither read nor write, and that his letters to his wife were written by the pantry boy. Witness sent for the boy, who denied that he had ever written anything for the prisoner. Prisoner, however, still adhered to his statement.

He also denied there had been any unpleasantness with Miss Browster, and when witness told him that Miss Crutchley heard Miss Brewster give him two or three slaps in the passage a day or two before the tragedy, he denied that Miss Brewster had ever slapped him. Dr Willcox, the Home Office analyst, who had spoken as to bloodstains on the prisoner's trousers, was next called in order that his avidence might be interpret-As soon as he entered the witnessbox the prisoner stooped down, and the

MASTARS OF LONDON. The Wonderful Temper and

Resource of the Police. PATTEMEN AND TACE.

It was about ben o'clock in the merning "Nip along," I said to the taxi-cabman, " want to be in Shoe-lane by ten minutes past ten." You won't be nowhere much by ten minutes past ton this morning, air, said the chauffour, but we drove merrily along until we got into Pall Mall, and found ourselves in one of the most complicated blocks of traffic I have ever seen in London, or elsewhere

In Paris, my adopted home, a block h the street traffic is an interesting thing to the student of human nature who is not in a hurry. If you have sor watched the traffic at the corner of the Place de l'Opera and the Boulevard des Capue nes, you have no doubt noticed the system. Cabs, lazi cabe, carta, omnibuses, carriagos, an other vehicles come together from points of the compass, and when chaos whitele, and his subordinates one of them at each corner. hold out white truncheons under the nose of the nearest horse or chauffeur. The traffic stops, the policemen try to disentangle it, and the drivers argue. - Like the immortal personage in the "Bab Ballads," they argue up and down, and also argue all about them. The policemen argue back, an olderly cab horse, with a sense of homour, falls down in the middle of the aproar, somebody calls somebody else kind of a stove, or a gherkin; there may, or there may not, be a free fight, and when a sufficiently large group of helpless old people has started to take advantage of the stoppege of traffic, and got across the road, snother whistle is blown the policeman with the air of a marechal de France in a Detaille picture thrusts forward his white truncheon, and the traffic dashes on while people do their best to escape it.

With this picture in my mind, I was certain, when I saw the big policeman in the middle of Pall Mall; that the would be carried away on a stretcher in a minute and a fraction. He looked over his shoulder at us and held up a finger to the west. Then he nedded eastward and the traffic. stopped. There was the calm of the half-hour before dinner over the landscape, and I sat and whispered to myself. "Can such things really be." I had made the acquaintance for the first time for years of the master of London. I have been watching him and wondering at him all through these Coronation days, each of which has seemed six weeks long, because so much has happened in it. What has struck me more than anything else is his wonderful temper, the power of his calm, quiet resource and his unfailing kindness. I have also been very much impressed by his wit. In my London days omnibus drivers were always amusing, omnibus conductors had a ruder wit, but were amusing too. The hansom cabman was quick at repartee, and of course, the street boy tinged all street life with cockney humour. But the policeman used not to be witty in London. His only retort was " Move on there," or the production of note book and a pencil. I suppose he still carries these implements of torture, but have not seen them. He certainly does not say "Move on" now. He nods or beckons, and things happen or stop happening just as he wills it. "He is the Lord of London. And London's Over-Lord, with the sequire ment of his certain sovereignty he has given rein to his innate sense of humour He used to be too busy to joke. Now the leisure of the busy man whose business is well organised, and he can relax; SCORN OF THE TRAFFIC This morning I leaned out of my and spoke to the man in blue. stable," I said, (the Over Lord likes to called "Constable") Constable, L am journalist and I am in a hurry. "Nothing unusual in that, sir," he answered. Then I noticed an excited little man in a Boyal carriage juck beside me. The open landau held him and a beautiful F. attache, and the coschman on the box wore the scarlet livery of his. Majesty the King, which has been one of the many spots of colour in the London streets these days. The Envoy Extraordinary the Republic of Hondurss, with whom had travelled in the special train from Paris and on the Royal yacht, called the policemen to his side. Monsieur, he said. The F. O. attache leaned forward boo. Er-er-this is a Foreign Office pass for his bis jesty's guests," and he showand another card of pain blue. "Yes, sir, said the Master of London, saluting you engot a hacroplans attachment to the carriage, there ain't no entargo upon flying just yet. To-morrow, of course, that II be different. The F. O. attache smiled, leaned back, and explained the situation to the Envoy Extraordinary of Honduras. Bobert is not only the Master of London, he is a puro delight as well. Then a finger droppedo we legot away, and we were stopped again a few yards further on. Each time we stopped 1 noticed the same wondrous certainty of his own personal mainty which pervaded the

Among the disordered conditions in which Smatogen is pre-eminently beneficial are nervous debility and breakdown, weakened and disordered nerves, brain-tag, insomnia and loss of memory, disordered digestion and dyspepsia, anamia, with its inevitable languor, palpitation, shortness of breath, and loss of vitality. Sanatogen's constituents are known to every doctor.

They are milk proteid and glycero-phosphate of sodium chemically combined to form a new compound which exercises the most potent and profound influence over the Nerves, Brain, and Body. For this reason it acts like a charm in the above-named conditions, its beneficial effects being invariably felt in a very short time. As a general tonic Sanatogen is unequalled; and it is the supreme restorative in convalescence from all acute diseases. It is easily digested, rapidly assimilated and absorbed and is the greatest known builder of physical strength and re-creator of lost nervous energy.

THE CALL OF A DYING PATHER.

A strange story was told at Willesden by Mark Mammette, aged seventeen, who was charged with wandering, having no visible means. He said that he was brought up in a charity school and sent to Canada, wher he remained some years on a farm. Of night he heard the voice of his father calling him home to England, as he was very ill. He at once left his work, and as he had saved some money he booked his passage to England. On arrival at Liverpool he came to London, and found his father dying in a house in a Whitechapel slum. He spent all his savings in providing medical attention and proper nourishment for his father, who died just as he had spent all his money. He was left stranded after the funeral, and since then had slept in the streets. He thought if his master i Canada knew of the plight he was in h would pay his fare out again. The missionary promised to send the lad to a farm in Lincolvehire until he had communicated with his employer in Canada.

The Bombay Corporation discussed the Royal visit and the committee a re port which recommended a casket costing B25,900 which they regarded as not ex ed-a yellow card with a red line across it cossive for the Corporation's address to His Majesty Eight manbers of the committee disapproved of the design, and put forward an amendment to refer the report back with the recommendation that only R6,000 be spent on the canket. This was moved in view of Their Majesties expressed. riserro that caskets should not be unduly expensive. The discussion was adjourned. Lioutenant General Sir H. L. Smith

Dorrien has intimated at Aldershot that he frequently finds it a matter of considerzble difficulty to tell whether soldiers are saluting or not when they pass him on bioycles, and in consequence it sometimes happens he does not acknowledge an intended sainto. Sudiers are therefore reminded that the proper way to salute on bloycle is for the min to w sit notil he is almost opposite the officer, and then turn his head smartly towards him. It was one of the great disappointments of English education that though our public shools were models to the world of what corporate life should be, yet that corporate feeling of the public school boy had never FOR TOILET AND translated itself as it should have done into effective action. For the most part the public school boy had not that adequate sense of obligation which the privileges of his education ought to have begotten in him. He was narrow, not only in his knowledge, in his outlook, and in municipal things, but he was narrow in his social life. He was content to look on and criticise when it ought to be the passion of his heart to be in the middle of the fight, helping and serving his species. He was content to look on at such sights as they saw

With the single exception of only one -day-Monday-Hongkong has had unwelcome attentions of the typhoon flend throughout the whole week. A sultry afternoon and a glowing sunset on Tuesday heralded the advent of the storm that was hovering around for the past four days and swept over the island with, fortunately, but the briefest duration early this morning.

Bathing parties returning from their "grounds" on Tuesday evening descried "green-green-green" lights on the tlagstaff of the Harbour Office ; and ever since that evening, with the necessary changes denoting the direction of the travelling storm, Hongkong has not been without its typhoon signal during the week.

Business affoat has been seriously disercraft which in their thousands had sought eafety behind the breakwater at Causeway Ray since Wednesday. The larger steamers too, prudently steamed away from their moorings into one or other of the numerous bays on the mainland, there to obtain plenty of swinging room in the event of a big storm sweeping over the harbour. leviathan Minnesota held her ground the P. M. S. S. Co.'s buoy, however, and, as the western anchorage had been almost deserted, she was safe in her isolation. A foretaste of the impending storm was

At about midnight continuolis, drenching rain fell, until Friday morning, when it cleared alightly, only to indicate the proverbial the evening of the 3rd, blowing from . calm before the storm.

Accordingly the order for tiring the bombs: was given at o'clock. At 11.45 a.m. it was observed that the typhoon had again taken alight bend and was apposching the coast a little to the west of Macao. The barometer had in the meantime commenced to rise in Hongkong and there. were indications that the gale would very likely gradually decrease in force. At noon the cone and ball, with the danger-warning cross above, were taken down and the ball heisted to show that the disturbance was to the west of the Colony. Mr Figg informed our representative that the typhoon was first noted on July Luzon. It crossed the peninsula during the night and on the morning of August 1st entered the China Sea near the north-west point of N. Luzon. It then followed a track north by west and its speed decreased somewhat compared with its earlier rate of progress. On the morning of the Srd-it, was to the S.S.E. of Hong-
